Detroit Automobile Companies Plan Plant Expansion Programs

By EDWARD W. MORRISON

Copyright, 1934, by Consolidated News Features

Detroit, Mich., August 31.—Detroit automobile companies are opening their purse strings for building and plant expansion programs for the first time in almost four years.

On top of the announcement of an expenditure of $1,000,000 for equipment and re-arrangement of production facilities by the Fisher Body Corp., the Ford Motor Co. is ready to lay out $1,000,000 on power improvements at the River Rouge plant in Dearborn.

The Ford program follows the enlargement of the company's steel plant in expanding its operations here. Ford is falling in line with other manufacturers, who are concentrating on the output of steel in the Detroit area. With iron abundant in northern Michigan, the automobile industry is finding expansion can be achieved by performing many of the steel-making operations at the same plant. Fisher Body Corp., Pontiac, is releasing a flow of cash in changes being made at its factories here. These requirements include the remapping of its whole manufacturing plant to care for the new low-priced Packard due on the market early next year.

The Chrysler budget on plant expansion has been given a boost recently, also. Chrysler has purchased plant facilities on the west side of Detroit and soon will have manufacturing facilities for several units in the more recently industrialized area that has close to the Ford domain.

The expanded efforts of the various companies indicate that they will be well prepared for whatever 1935 may bring in the way of increased business.

Thus far, however, there has been less talk than usual of impending models and plans for the coming twelve months. For new ideas, most of the companies have been so busy this year building cars to meet the needs of the public's reduced pocket book that they have had little time to plan for 1935. The current year has been one of intense competition.

The motor companies have concentrated on moving cars of their present lines rather than on making blue prints for 1935 cars. The price reductions that were made late in the spring and early in the summer did not help to stabilize the situation, so far as the manufacturers were concerned. When the early 1934 prices did not stand up, it was necessary for most of the companies to take a close look at their sales and production budgets for the remainder of the year—and there were many changes.

All this does not mean, however, there will not be the usual number of new models by the time the first of January moves around. The regular announcements may be expected in time for the shows. When plans for 1935 are laid out, most of the manufacturers will fervently pray that none of the labor troubles that were so prominent last winter will descend upon them again.

MORAN SCHOOL STUDENTS ACCEPT OFFICE POSITIONS

Miss Edith Miller, a graduate of both secretarial and accounting departments of the Moran Business School, Burgevin Building, has accepted a responsible position in the office of the Merchants' Credit Association, 277 Fair street.

Miss Miller succeeds Miss Mildred Welrich, another Moran graduate, class of 1934. Having attained a rating of 96½ per cent in the state civil service examination, Miss Welrich received appointment to an important secretarial position in the office of the local ABC board.

CONTROL OF HEART DISEASE THROUGH DIET POSSIBLE

Ithaca, Aug. 31.—Through a diet the heart is more difficult to poison than a rubber car, such are probabilities," says Professor C. M. McCay of the Cornell University agricultural experiment station, "especially if food is studied as much as it should."

In addition to the proof, made during the past four years, that life can be extended by special diets, he points out, two other advances of interest to every grown person have been made. First, heart disease can be produced at will in animals by means of the diet. The diet then can be varied to learn which combination of foods produces heart disease and which does not.

"We are studying this very problem at the present time," Professor McCay says.

"Second, better methods of studying the food requirements of grown animals have been developed during the past two years. Animals are given the best diets until they reach the half-way mark in life. Then the diet is varied, and the animals are killed after a number of months to see what changes have taken place in their bones. During the past year we have found that the composition of the bones can be changed by the diet. This has been done for animals at the half-way mark in life. Eventually, it is hoped that old people will have bones that will break less easily and be as supple as the bones of young people."

Professor McCay believes that not enough attention has been given, in the past, to food requirements of adult animals.

FIGHT AGAINST DUTCH ELM DISEASE CONTINUES

Ithaca, Aug. 31.—According to Dr. K. F. Kellerman of the United States bureau of entomology and plant quarantine, the Dutch elm disease, is now known to exist only in the vicinity of New York city.

But, Dr. Kellerman says, since elm logs have been imported through several ports and shipped to various inland points, the bureau is anxious to learn of any suspicious diseased elm trees, especially in the territory east of the Mississippi river.

Only enough funds are available to the bureau for scouting in the immediate vicinity of the known infected area in Connecticut, New York, and New Jersey. Dr. Kellerman asks for the aid of the extension service in watching for the possible appearance of this disease over a wider territory.

Notice to this effect has been sent to state extension directors, county agent leaders, district agents, county agents, and extension pathologists in the states concerned by G. W. Warburton, director of extension in the United States department of agriculture.

The rescue party didn't get to Admiral Byrd a minute too soon.

Farm Filtering of Cider Made Easier

Geneva, Aug. 31.—Babes say that there are great possibilities in developing fresh apple cider as a year-round beverage for sale at roadside stands, at soda fountains and elsewhere, chemists at the State Experiment Station here have been studying ways of improving the quality and appearance of the important by-product of the apple industry. Certain features of this work will be demonstrated at the State Fair in Syracuse next month, particularly a simple homemade device for the rapid filtering of cider on the farm, according to an announcement from the Experiment Station. The filter was devised by the Michigan Experiment Station and has been used extensively in that state with very satisfactory results.

In addition to the filtering operation, the station chemists have accomplished much in simplifying the clarification, preservation and carbonation of cider on the farm, all of which make possible the production of a sparkling clear beverage for year-round sale at the roadside stand. Full particulars on all phases of cider making will be available at the Experiment Station exhibit, it is said.

Among other lines of work to be featured by the station at the State Fair will be the breeding of new fruits, studies on the control of insect pests and diseases of fruits and vegetables, vegetable variety testing, the chemical inspection of fertilizers and feeding stuffs, the testing of legume inoculants, the detection and control of mastitis, and recent experiments with strainers which demonstrate the factors in the dairy barn that affect the efficiency of milk strainers. Members of the station staff will be in attendance at the exhibit to answer questions and discuss individual problems.

LISTS THE CUT FLOWERS THAT LAST LONGEST TIME

Ithaca, Aug. 31.—To keep cut flowers fresh as long as possible is the aim of most everyone interested in their beauty, says A. M. S. Pridham of the New York state college of agriculture.

Some flowers, he notes, keep longer than others after they have been cut, and their relative keeping qualities he lists as follows: Long-lived, or those cut flowers that will live about one week or more in water, alphabetically listed are: Aster, calendula, campanula, carnation, chrysanthemum, daisy, galliardia, gladiolus, heuchera, Spanish and Japanese iris, lily, narcissus, nigella, orchid, rose, tulip, and verbena.

Short-lived, or those that live about three days or less when cut, are: Calceolaria, centaurea, coreopsis, cosmos, globe flower, gloxinia, begonia, bellflower, cissy, gladiolus, violet, and wallflower. Flowers which rapidly fade the water in which they are kept are: Aster, calceolaria, delphinium, gladiolus, forget-me-not, heuchera, hollyhock, hyacinth, marigold, nigella, snapdragon, stock, wallflower, and yucca.

Flowers which particularly benefit from floating in water before they are arranged: Bougainvillea, cyclamen, forget-me-not, lantana, pansy, poppy, primrose, and violet.

CARNIVAL AT WILBUR SATURDAY EVENING
The carnival held a few weeks ago at Eddyville—the out mission of Holy Name parish—was so successful that it suggested one tomorrow, Saturday, September 1, at Wilbur. The committees have been working, the lights are strung, the various features all set and the funniest one again will be the boys' pie eating contest. An excellent orchestra has been engaged for the dancing. Cars may be parked at the foot of the illuminated stairs from Abeel street. The parish census continues this week.

Slenderizing

A delightful little dress for now—that will carry you right through the fall, is today's pattern. It is especially lovely for women above normal weight or any one who needs slenderizing lines. All its points—and there are several—soft scari neckline knotted in jabot effect, slender sleeves, paneled cut skirt and curved hip seaming, produce a graceful length of line which is most attractive and slimming. Smart contrast is afforded this charming dress of black novelty crepe through the green velvet collar. Black satin with white trim is another fascinating idea for it.

Style No. 3170 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material with 1/4 yard of 35-inch contrasting.

A black ribbed soft crepe that suggests wool made today's attractive dress. A white touch in satin crepe appeared at the neck used for the collar and the vestee.

Its clever styling gives a hint of outdooriness so "just right" for toadless fall days. It's a dress, too, that you can wear right through the winter, which makes it a very economical choice.

The shaped panels cut in one from shoulders to hem, suggest princess; consequently it is very slimming—and easy to make!

Style No. 2662 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3 1/2 yards of 39-inch material with 1/4 yard of 35-inch contrasting.

That Body of Yours

 RHEUMATIC PAINS

It is only natural that when an individual with painful joints or rheumatism has had infected teeth or tonsils removed he should expect considerable relief. He has been told by his doctor that the pain may be worse immediately after the operation because the open blood vessels around the teeth or tonsils will get more poison into them at this time.

However, weeks and sometimes months after the operation he still has the pain though not nearly so severe.

His doctor tells him that considerable amount of the poison is still in the system, particularly about the large intestine, and that it is absorption of these poisons that is responsible for the persistence of the pain.

Research workers and others have noticed that both the small and large intestine in these arthritic or rheumatic patients have many extra turns and twists so that there is considerable delay in the passage of the food and wastes on their way downward.

That slowness of food absorption and the absorption of some of the wastes in the intestine is responsible for much arthritis or rheumatism is now admitted. Drs. Ralph Pemberton, E. G. Pierce, and T. F. Bach in the Medical Journal and Record call attention to the marked improvement in these patients that may follow cutting down on the amount of food eaten.

The foods that are lessened in amount are the carbohydrates or starches—potatoes, bread, pastry, and particularly sugar.

It was at first thought that the improvement in these cases was due to an increase in the vitamins rather than in cutting down on the starches, but after further experiments the conclusion was reached that the improvement occurs "even when vitamins are left out of the diet." For years, as you know, eating meat was thought to be the cause of rheumatism.

Now food must be eaten, and the starches mentioned above must be eaten because they are necessary foods, but cutting down on these foods, holding the body in the erect position, taking bending exercises to strengthen the abdominal muscles which also prevent too many twists and turns in the intestine, is good treatment in the cure or prevention of arthritis or rheumatism.

WHEN WORLDS COLIDE

BY EDWIN BALMER & PHILIP WYLIE

Synopsis of Preceding Installment

Two planets, Arcturus Alpha and Venus Beta, torn away from another sun, are approaching the earth. The world's most distinguished scientists are meeting with Dr. Adam Henderson of New York to discuss the danger of the last days. Their discovery of the planets is described by photographs taken in both Africa and Asia. Henderson and his daughter Eve, his wife and son, are deeply in love but her father forbids them to marry and she interferes with his plans for them. Henderson has been unable as yet to find a way to escape with his family. Henderson has been unable as yet to find a way to escape with his family. Henderson has been unable as yet to find a way to escape with his family.

INSTALLMENT TWENTY-ONE

Henderson stood before an audience of nearly a thousand persons. It was a favored audience. He bowed to the applause.

"I speak to you tonight, my friends, in the first full flush of the knowledge that your sacrifices and sufferings have not been in vain. Henderson has solved our last technical problem. We have assured ourselves by observation that life on the planet to be will be possible; man shall live; we are the fathers of this new history."

The wild applause proclaimed the hopes no one had dared to declare before.

"But tonight I wish to talk not of the future. There is time enough for that. I wish to talk of rather to-day—the present." He picked up from a small table the topmost of a number of ordinary notebooks.

"I have here James' record of the journey that brought us salvation. I cannot read you all of it. This is the first of the seven notebooks James filled."

He opened the book. He read:

"August 15th. Tonight Randall, Vanderbilt and I descended at six o'clock precisely on a small body of water which is a residue in a bed of Lake Michigan. We are lying at anchor about a mile from Chicago."

"Following south along what was once the coast of Lake Michigan, we flew over scenes of desolation and destruction identical with those described after our first reconnaissance. The world has indeed been wrecked."

"When we anchored here, sharply outlined against the later afternoon sun stood the memorable skyline of the metropolis—relatively undamaged. I recognized the Wrigley Building, the Tribune Tower, the 333 North Michigan Avenue Building and others."

"We had landed on the water from the north. We anchored near shore and quickly made our way to land. All of us were armed. Lots were drawn to determine whether Randall or Vanderbilt would remain on guard beside the ship. I was useless in that capacity, as I would be unable to fit it in case of emergency. It was agreed that the lone guard was to take off instantly upon the approach of any persons whatever. Our ship was our only refuge."

"Vanderbilt was elected to remain. Randall and I started off at once toward the city. The pool on which we lay was approximately a mile in diameter and some two hundred feet below the level of the city. We started across the weird water-bottom. Mud, weeds, wrecks, debris, puddles, cracks, cliffs and steep ascents impeded our progress."

"As we scrambled to the top of a sea-wall the streets of the metropolis stretched before us—empty. Chicago was a dead city. We strained our ears and eyes. There was nothing. No light in the staring windows. No plume of steam from the lofty buildings. Unconsciously, we had both drawn our revolvers."

"Directly ahead of us were the skyscrapers of the northern business district. Large sections of brick and stonework had been shaken from the sides of the buildings, leaving yawning holes which looked as if caused by shell-fire. The great windows had been shaken into the street, and the sidewalks were literally buried in broken glass. A still more amazing phenomenon was noticeable from our position on the lake shore: the skyscrapers were visibly out of plumb, perhaps by as much as fifteen or twenty feet.

"We moved forward into the business district. We had crossed the railroad tracks before we found any bodies; but on the other side they appeared here and there. It was necessary at times to circumvent an enormous pile of debris which had cascaded from the side of a building. It was immediately manifest that the people who had left Chicago had taken with them every object upon which they could lay their hands. The stores were like open bazaars; their glass windows had been broken in by marauders or burst out by the quakes, and their contents had been ravaged."

"We continued to notice that the dead on the street did not represent even a tithe of the metropolitan population, and I expressed the opinion that the passing of the Bronson Bodies must have caused a mighty exodus."

"Randall's reply was a shrug, and abruptly my mind was discharged upon a new course. 'You think they're all upstairs?' I asked."

"He nodded. A block farther along, we came to an open square. It was not a large square in comparison with the gigantic openings in the earth which we had seen hitherto, but it appeared to go deep into the earth, and a thin veil of steam escaped from it. As we approached it, the wind blew toward us a wisp of this exuding gas, and instantly we were thrown into fits of coughing. Our lungs burned, our eyes stung and we snatched each other's arms and ran uncertainly from the place."

"Gas," Randall said, gasping.

"No other words were necessary to interpret the frightful fate of Chicago; nothing could better demonstrate how profound was the disturbance under the earth's crust. For in this region noted for its freedom from seismic shocks and remote from the recognized volcanic region, it was evident that deadly, suffocating gases such as previously had found the surface only through volcanoes, here had seeped up and blotted out the population. These gases, largely hydrochloric, was heavier than air; and apparently they lay like a choking cloud on the ground. When those who escaped the first suffocating currents—and apparently they were in the majority—climbed to upper floors to escape, they were followed by the rising vapors. That frightful theory explained why there were so few dead on the street, and why no one had returned to the silent city."

"Darkness was approaching, and moreover our single experience with the potency of the gas even in dilution warned us that a deeper penetration of the metropolitan area was more than dangerous."

"We found Vanderbilt sitting upon a stone on the shore beside the plane. We pushed out to it in the collapsible boat, and while we ate supper, we told him what we had seen."

"His comment perhaps is suitable for closing this record of the great city of Chicago: 'Sitting alone, I realized what you were investigating; and for the first time, gentlemen, I understand what the end of the world would mean. I have never come so close to losing my nerve. It was awful!'"

Henderson turned a few pages. "I am now skipping a portion of Mr.

"The waters of Lake Huron had poured through the city and surrounding district, completely depopulating it and largely destroying it."

James' record.

It covers their investigation of the Great Lakes and describes with care the geological upturning of that basin. From Chicago they flew to Detroit. In Detroit they found a different form of desolation. The waters of Lake Huron had poured through the city and the surrounding district, completely depopulating it and largely destroying it. They were able to land their plane on a large boulevard, a section of which was unbroken, and they refueled in the vicinity. They saw no one. Cleveland had suffered a similar fate. They then continued their flight to Pittsburgh. I read from Mr. James' record:

"Like God leading the children of Israel, Pittsburgh remains in my memory as a pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night. As we approached the city, we saw smoke arising against the sky. Vanderbilt damped the motors and we dropped toward the Monongahela River, which was full to the brim of the leaves and threatened to inundate the city. Earthquakes had half wrecked its structures. They lay broken and battered on 'The Point' which lies between the two rivers. Smoke and steam emerged from a vent in Mt. Washington. The bridges were all down."

"Our ship came to rest, and we taxied cautiously toward one of the submerged bridges. I threw a rope over one of the girders, and we made fast. We went ashore by way of the taut rope."

"It was easy to perceive the cause of the smoke. A large area of what remained of Pittsburgh, was in flames, and to our ears came clearly the din of battle. Rifles cracked incessantly; machine guns clattered; and occasionally we heard the cough of a hand-grenade."

"It was not wise to proceed farther. Nevertheless, I insisted on going forward while my companions returned to guard our precious ship. I had not invaded the city deeply before bullets buzzed overhead. I took cover. Not far away in a street that was a shambles, I saw men moving. They carried rifles which they fired frequently; and they wore the tattered remnants of the uniform of the National Guard."

"A squad of these men retreated toward me, and as they did so, I perceived their enemy. Far down the street a mass of people surged over the barricade-like ruins of a building. They were terrible to see, even at that distance. Half naked, savage, screaming, armed with every tool that might be used as a weapon—a mob of the most desperate sort. The retreating squad stopped, took aim and several of the approaching savages fell. In their united voices I detected the tones of women."

"As the guardsmen reached my vicinity, one of them clapped his hand to his arm and staggered away from his fellows to shelter. The squad was at that instant reinforced by a number of soldiers who carried a machine gun. The mob was temporarily checked by its clatter."

"I made my way to the wounded man, and he gratefully accepted the ministrations I could offer from the small kit I carried in my pocket. His right arm had been pierced. It was from him that I was able to learn the story of Pittsburgh."

Our Children

By Angelo Patri

THE SICK CHILD

"HE WILL have to stay in bed. A month at least, maybe more."

"My goodness. How can I keep him in bed? With one younger than he is and the baby. He doesn't want to stay in bed."

"He's got to. If he won't stay in bed at home then we will have to put him in the hospital. He'd be better off there anyway."

"I'd never consent to his going to a hospital. Never."

Bonnie was active in spirit and he hated to stay in bed. At seven years of age it is hard to be sentenced to idleness and stillness. He wanted somebody to stay with him. He found that by crying, long and loudly, with persistence and pathos, he could tie mother to his bedside. Father, too. When he came home Bonnie waited for his company. "Stay with me. You stay with me or I'll cry and cry."

Sometimes father lost his patience and went downstairs. Bonnie raised his voice to heaven in protest. "Stop that noise," shouted father from below.

"Come up here. I want you to stay with me."

"If you don't stop that whining I'm coming upstairs to give you a spanking."

Evidently Bonnie thought that a spanking was preferable to being left by himself so he kept on wailing. Father spanked him. He kept on wailing. Mother went up to him and told him that she had to stay with the baby who was cutting teeth and very peevish.

"I don't care, you stay with me," roared Bonnie.

It is hard to deal with sick children, especially when they are not suffering enough to make them willing to stay in bed and alone. But they have to learn to adjust themselves to the situation just as they must learn the same lesson in other ways. The best way to do is to make a schedule and abide by it.

Set the time for washing of faces and hands, for toilet operations, bedmaking, breakfast, rest periods, visits, quiet times, and stick to it as the hospital sticks to its schedule. The regularity establishes itself in the child's mind and body. His mind rests. His body is more at ease. Quiet, routine, certainty are good cures for illness. Often they are the only medicine these bedridden children need. The impersonal and kindly attitude of the hospital nurse is what the sick child needs rather than petting and pitying.

Don't let these children feel that you are sorry for them. One can be kind and sympathetic without pitying them. They can have all the necessary attention with affection thrown in. Without the futile attentions they are going to demand if they find they can do so. Ask the doctor or the professional nurse to help you establish a good bedroom routine and then abide by it as far as you can.

Find amusing things for them to do during the hours they are alone. Change the amusements when you find them falling. Allow visitors, according to the child's state of health. Hold fast to the visiting hours and allow nobody to overstay his time. The ailing child must not be fatigued. The clock and your good judgment must settle the matter not the children's pleadings. Let the child know that he is getting well. Keep him looking forward to that and don't pamper him.

 Profts

Washington, Aug. 30 (AP)—The secret of the Morgenthau speech was that he announced a $2,500,000,000 inflation without directly saying so.

It is not exactly the kind of inflation that the Thomases and Wheelers have been talking about, but a restricted and possibly a business-like inflation. It means the issuance of two and a half billions in currency based on the theoretical bookkeeping "profit" from gold revaluation. Even Mr. Morgenthau put the word "profit" in quotation marks.

He did not say a word about silver, but every insider suspects he will revalue the silver dollar in about ninety days and cash in on that also.

$20,721,184 Spent for Relief to Families

Approximately $20,721,184 was expended from Federal, State and local funds during the month of July for Home and Work Relief to 457,515 unemployed families in New York state, according to the monthly report of the State Temporary Emergency Relief Administration made public yesterday (August 30) by Frederick J. Daniels, Executive Director of the state organization.

The relief expenditures and the number of families receiving relief during July remained virtually the same as the previous month.

Of the total 457,515 families on relief in New York state about 273,537 received Home Relief, while 183,978 were paid Work Relief wages. Of the total relief expenditures for the month of July, $11,555,573, or 55 per cent, was used for paying out wages to unemployed persons repairing roads, constructing bridges, building municipal auditoriums, renovating and remodeling public buildings in the state and other types of Work Relief projects of permanent value to the state and its taxpayers.

Some Gardening is Done BEST IN THE FALL SEASON

By THE MASTER GARDENER

Many gardeners are unaware of the gardening possibilities of fall, and so when September comes around their interest in gardening lags. Fall is a very important gardening season. To give you an idea of its importance I am going to list a few of the fall gardening activities. Some, like lawn making, are best done in the fall.

Lawn work: Authorities agree that fall is the best time to make new lawns or repair established lawns. Preparation can be started any time but seeding is best done between August 15 and September 15.

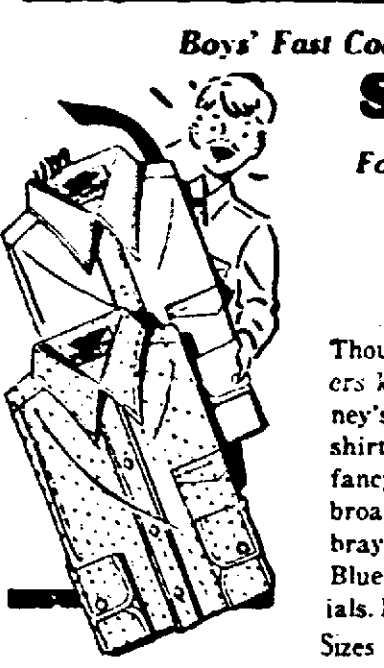

Vegetable growing: Replanted in early fall with quick growing varieties, the garden will yield another crop of toothsome, nourishing vegetables. Lettuce, radishes, turnips, and garden peas are a few vegetables that are suitable for fall planting. Your local seedsmen can enlarge on this list and suggest varieties suitable for your use.

Planting Bulbs: You'll have to plant bulbs this fall if you are interested in having flowers blooming in the garden very early in spring. This work should be done rather late in fall, usually the latter part of September or during October, depending on the weather.

It is imperative in fall gardening work that the soil be prepared well, plants supplied with ample nourishment, and that only highest quality seed and bulbs be planted. It is easy to follow this advice. You'll find the soil easy to work at this season. It is seldom necessary or advisable to reseed. Just rework the top few inches of soil with the hoe. You can be sure your plants will get the food they need if you apply four pounds of complete plant food per 100 square feet before sowing the seeds or bulbs. By dealing with reliable merchants you'll be sure to get high-quality seed and bulbs.

THROUGH A Woman's Eyes

By JEAN NEWTON

BURNING THE BOOKS

I HAVE just come across an old Roman legend relating how the Christian missionaries offered Tarquin the Proud some books—at a price. Tarquin refused them.

The story burned three of the books—and offered him the remaining one. But the price was the same! Naturally he laughed at her.

Then she burned three more and offered him the remainder at the same price she had asked for the first. This time he paid the price.

And, of course—there would be no story—the books were found to be vitally important mines of information on Roman policy, which he sorely needed, and the most valuable were those that had been destroyed.

I shall preach no moral on lost opportunities. But that ancient story does point right at so many people we know in this modern day, who fail to value things until they become hard to get, until, like the books offered to Tarquin, their price has gone up.

It is not only the material things about which we sometimes show such a distorted sense of value. I am thinking more of matters of interest, friendship, love.

People offer us their friendship, and we sometimes wonder what they want of us—or pass up that offer that is made so freely that it seems cheap. Sometimes second thought or a vague inspiration impels us to pick up that thread; and we may find that what we thought cheap was generosity undervalued—until something of it was destroyed.

There are many things in life about which it is costly to be casual or careless, or arrogant, as was that ancient ruler about books which held the answer to his needs. Things are not always valuable or important in proportion to how high their price or how easily they are within our reach.

THE NIGHT BEFORE YOUR BIRTHDAY

By ANNE CAMPBELL

THIS spent year will not come again.

A happy year of childhood done, When every path was broad and plain.

And there was never dearth of sun.

You may not call its magic back, Although Time gives you wisdom's gold;

And often you will feel the lack Of its allure when you are old.

A careless, happy, sunny year Has slipped into the evanescing skies. For you the future has no fear.

It climbs on straight to Paradise.

Upon each birthday eve, dear child, May you with the same trustful gaze,

Look backward on hours undefined, And forward to enchanting days!

The Anemone

The anemone, named by the Greeks because it grew in windy places, is the anemometer, instrument for measuring the force of the wind, of the wilderness, observes a writer in the New York World-Telegram. It is an old wind that blows nobody good. Whenever the wood anemone trembles in the breeze somebody's ship is coming in from sea. There is a cosmic tide with which the winds of heaven blow, with which if you drift, all things come to you. If you swim against the tide, good things float past you. To be in harmony with it you must have the harmonies: consideration of others, sympathy with their needs, kindness, benevolence, tenderness toward all. The five petals of the anemone stand for these harmonies.

USE DERRIS TO COMBAT WORMS ON CAULIFLOWER

Geneva, Aug. 31.—Cauliflower growers are being advised by specialists at the State Experiment Station here to use derris, a comparatively new insecticide in this country, to combat worms on cauliflower. Promising results were obtained with this material in experiments carried on in western New York last year, they say, pointing out that in addition to its effectiveness against cauliflower worms, derris has the further advantage of being non-poisonous to man and thus may solve the problem of arsenical residues on cauliflower that frequently follows the use of insecticides containing arsenic.

While the results of only one season's experiments are available and hence must be regarded as tentative, the outlook for the new material is so encouraging that the Experiment Station has issued a bulletin describing the experiments and giving directions for the use of derris on cauliflower. A copy of the bulletin may be obtained upon request to the station.

"Ground derris root diluted with talc so as to give a dust containing 0.5 per cent of rotenone, the active principle of derris, gave effective control of caterpillars on cauliflower," says Dr. G. E. R. Hervey, Station entomologist who conducted the tests. "In general, it will probably be more satisfactory to purchase the material ready mixed unless the grower has good facilities for mixing dusts. Owing to the fact that derris deteriorates rapidly on exposure to air and light, the container must be kept tightly closed between applications. Dusting should be at the rate of 25 or 30 pounds per acre and the material can be applied with a power duster or with a good rotary hand duster. In gardens or small plantings, the dust may be placed in a cheesecloth sack and sifted over the plants. In 1933, with moderate infestations, two applications about three weeks apart gave adequate protection to cauliflower, but the number and time of application will have to be determined by seasonal conditions.

"Because of the increasing interest in derris, it is probable that derris dusts will be obtainable this season through most local dealers in insecticides. Derris dust containing 0.5 per cent rotenone retailed for 12 to 14 cents a pound in 1933, while ground derris root containing 4 to 5 per cent of rotenone retailed at 43 to 50 cents a pound f. o. b. New York city."

EVEN THE BOYS OF N. Y. STATE TAKE HOMEMAKING

Ithaca, Aug. 31.—Many boys in New York state high schools are taking home economics courses. According to recent statistics, the interest of boys in such work is greater here than in any other state in the union. They are eager to study family relationships, home management, and home furnishings, as well as cooking, said Marion S. Van Liew, chief of the bureau of home economics of the state department of education, to a group of high school principals attending the Cornell summer session. She adds, however, that the new thought in education and the chance from the old four-year high school to the new idea of a junior and senior high school has caused some difficulties in planning for homemaker courses.

"Many times, pupils find the homemaker course in the ninth grade too hard, or that it takes too much time," Miss Van Liew continued. "Usually, such pupils take too many other subjects with their homemaker, or a senior-high-school homemaker course has been included in the junior high school studies. "Students, especially those of the ninth grade level, should not be crowded, and should start in a homemaker course planned for their own level. The bureau of home economics education suggests that the study of foods and clothing be offered in the senior high school as a tenth grade subject followed by the study of home furnishings and home management in the eleventh and twelfth years. A junior high school sequence may be offered in grades seven, eight, and nine; with the ninth grade course offered for five periods a week with outside preparation, for one Regents unit of credit. With this plan no crowding of the ninth grade pupils' schedule occurs and students who give most to vocational homemaker courses.

Pleaded Guilty To Reckless Driving Financial and Commercial

John Bostel, who was arrested a couple of weeks ago on charges of driving a car while intoxicated following a collision with the car of William H. Hulse on Kingston near Paradise, pleaded guilty to reckless driving today in Judge Webster's court. Bostel, who was arrested on the Flatbush road, entered a plea of guilty to reckless driving today evening before Judge Webster of the town of Haver and a $25 fine was imposed. Michael Tierney and Thomas Egan, also of Kingston, pleaded guilty to reckless driving and their fines were suspended by the court. Chris J. Flanagan appeared for the defendants and Assistant District Attorney Edward Conway appeared for the State.

At the time of the arrests following the accident the trio were lodged in jail pending a hearing before Judge Webster. At the hearing a demand for a jury trial was made and Thursday evening a jury was present but before the cases were called an agreement was reached to enter pleas of guilty so the services of the jurors were not required.

Repair Loans Carry Security for Owner

Washington, Aug. 31 (AP).—The federal housing administration told home owners today it had arranged for them to obtain repair loans from so-called mortgage institutions without having to fear foreclosure of their mortgages put up as security.

It was a move designed to open up the facilities of institutions whose charters under state laws restrict their lending on mortgage security. Under the plan, the FHA will permit the institution to take a mortgage to satisfy the note, but in case of default promises not to look to the mortgage for reimbursement, require foreclosure or assign the mortgage in case of claim for loss.

"Through this method, unique in the mortgage field," the FHA explained, "the mortgage is relegated from its place as principal security to one of security in legal form only, so as to permit mortgage institutions to proceed as if these loans were unsecured and yet meet the requirements of the laws of their states."

Vigorous Protest Made By Leather Workers

Binghamton, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP).—In a new protest against the program of using hides from government-killed cattle for the manufacture of shoes and other leather products, shoe manufacturers have indicated they will fight to a finish to keep these hides off the market.

It was learned here yesterday that the National Boot and Shoe Manufacturers' Association, claiming to represent 800 manufacturers and 40,000 shoe retailers, had sent a resolution to President Roosevelt and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace protesting against the government's program.

At the same time, 19,000 employees of the Endicott-Johnson Shoe Company of Endicott sent a petition to the President asking that the program be discontinued. This followed a protest earlier in the week by the Endicott-Johnson management.

Two Youths Held For Grand Jury

Melvin McGinnis of Wilbur avenue and Harold Carney of Chapel street, two youths arrested Thursday evening on a charge of unlawful entry in breaking into the garage of the Binnewater Lake Ice Company and stealing gas, both waived examination when arraigned before Judge Culliton in police court this morning, and were held to await the action of the grand jury.

Thomas Doran of Bridgeport, Conn., arrested on a charge of panhandling, was given five days in the county jail.

Gene Tunney, Good Samaritan.
Wanted, Conn.—Two Plainfield, N. J. boys have a story to tell their parents when they return home. It is about Gene Tunney, the good Samaritan.

The coming is St. John's Island, off the Maine coast, where the former heavyweight champion is vacationing.

A letter received here from a friend of Tunney said the boy had been to the island to obtain the letter. A storm broke, too, and the boys' boat was weathered. But Tunney relieved them of their worries about how to return to the island.

Un-common Pin.
Lincoln, Neb.—Somewhere in Lincoln is a pin, a common pin in some respects, which its owner wants to trade for a new automobile. A want ad in a Lincoln newspaper says: "Complete Lord's Prayer engraved on pin head... exchange for a new car."

Surprise!
Benedict, Neb.—Arthur Clayton, Jr., 8, yelled to his brother John, 5, that he had a surprise. It was a surprise for both of them—a shotgun that they didn't know was loaded. When Arthur pulled the trigger, the charge killed John.

Philadelphia.—Police arrested two blind musicians, Roth Miller, 22, accordion player, and Rex Overman, 29, saxophonist, on charges of disorderly conduct. Although both are good musicians, police said, they preferred to play on street corners—and collected $20 in 20 minutes.

Kander Farm to Be Scene of Field Day

Kander's Pedigreed Leghorn Farm at New Paltz will be the scene of a second Leghorn Breeders' Field Day on September 7, from 2 p. m. to 4 p. m.

Some 550 breeders, coming from a radius of 400 to 500 miles attended the first field day held two years ago. Among these breeders were represented the owners of over one-half million laying hens with an incubation capacity greater than six million chicks per year.

The following speakers are scheduled to appear: Professor Davis Warner, of Storrs Agricultural College, Storrs, Conn., subject, "The Value of Egg Laying Contests." Prof. H. A. Bitterbender, head of the Buckeye Research Department, subject, "Incubation Progress." Meade Summers, of Purina Mills, subject, "The Feeding Keeping Pace with Breeding." Irving J. Kauder, of New Paltz, subject, "Poultry Plant Layout and Breeding Record Keeping System." After the talks tours will be made of the Kauder plant.

Should it rain on the seventh the program will be held on Saturday, September 8, same time.

It would be appreciated if those planning to attend the Field Day write Irving Kauder, advising him of their intended appearance. This is considered an excellent opportunity for the poultrymen throughout this community to acquire some first hand information on the management, breeding and marketing of poultry and poultry products.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Rider visited relatives on Sunday.

Speaking of Archduke Otto, we can't conceive of any reason why a sane person would want to be the head of affairs in Austria at this particular time.

.... all He wanted to do was sell tomatoes

but He helped make You HEALTHY
the Year
'Round!

NOT so many years ago the round, red fruit of a certain vine was called a "love-apple." A man in his right mind would no more eat it than he would go out and munch a toadstool. It was supposed to kill you at the very first bite! Then some hardy soul decided to "bite and see!" And so the delicious tomato was introduced to a hungry world.

But news of the new tomato traveled very slowly. Your children might not be keeping healthy with it today if a grocer somewhere in an old-fashioned town hadn't been "stuck" with a bushel or two. Faced with a loss if they rotted, he threw discretion to the winds and ran an ad in the paper.

"TOMATOES FOR SALE. This fine new fruit said to be excellent for the health and complexion. I have a choice few. Fifteen cents apiece."

Mr. Grocer sold the lot, ordered more, sold those and presently was able to cut his price in half and then some while babies waxed fat on tomato juice.

CONVENIENCES GRANDMA NEVER DREAMED OF

As with tomatoes, so with vacuum cleaners, safety razors, oil burners and the latest hat from Paris. The merchants who advertise them to you have no burning desire to make this world a healthier, smarter, more leisurely place to live in. They want to sell vacuum cleaners, safety razors, oil burners and lovely hats—and advertising is the best way to do it. But their advertising has told you about a lot of things you'd hate to be without today. Their advertising has introduced you to comforts and conveniences your grandmother never even dreamed of! And—because all wise buyers read advertising—Mr. Merchant sells more advertised goods and can keep on lowering the price to you.

Reads like a romance, doesn't it? But you can prove it for yourself. As you check through the ads in the Daily Freeman today just count the number of things that make life pleasant which you might never have heard about if you hadn't "seen them in the ads." And count the number of things you'd like to buy but couldn't afford (like tomatoes at fifteen cents apiece) if advertising hadn't made them so cheap and plentiful.

Perhaps you'll agree—we could get along without advertising—along with tomatoes and fountain pens and electric fans and swell silk stockings at 69c.

But, honest—wouldn't it be a tiresome old world?

AD-SHOPPING MAKES YOUR BUYING DOLLAR GO MUCH EARTHER!

Ever play the game of ad-shopping? It's a great pastime and a grand time-and-money saver. Just make a list of what you want and need. Then check your list against the things you see advertised in the Daily Freeman. Compare prices to your heart's content. Make note of anything you see advertised that you may have overlooked in planning your shopping list. Now you're ready to go—without wasting the day tramping endlessly from one store to another. You'll come home fresh as a daisy.

Oh, but wait! Just add up the prices of the advertised items you are going to buy. Good deal less than you thought it would be, isn't it? That's what puts the biggest thrill in ad-shopping! You usually have enough money left over to buy something extra-nice and personal for yourself!

Yankees Drub The Senators, 8-2; Tigers Scalp Indians, Hold Lead

By HUGH S. FULLERTON, JR.
Associated Press Sports Writer

So long as they have the championship, the Yankees seem to be in the best of luck. They won the last game of the season, 8-2, over the Senators.

The game was a close one, with the Yankees leading 2-1 in the fifth inning. But they came back in the sixth and seventh innings to win the game.

The Yankees' victory was a significant one, as it gave them a 5-1 lead over the Senators in the series.

Rose Beats Strong In City Tennis, Plays Hancock In Finals For Title

Handall Rose, the No. 1 seeded player in the tournament for the city tennis title, defeated Ed Strong, 6-2, 6-1, 6-1, yesterday afternoon at Forsyth Park.

Rose is now in the finals and is playing Stan Hancock for the title this afternoon. A large crowd of tennis fans is expected to be at the courts to witness two of the city's best racket wielders fight it out for the trophy which will be emblematic of tennis supremacy on Kingston's courts.

In his match with Strong, Rose had the situation well in hand at all times, allowing Ed only four games in the three sets played. Randall played very steady tennis right from the start and took the first set at Swan. In the second and final sets he played as a defending champion should, and ran out the two sets with the loss of only two games.

Some doubles matches were run off yesterday. Bob Herzog has taken Bob Hancock's place on the team of Hancock and Fowler, as Hancock starts on his vacation next week and would not be able to play in all the matches.

Herzog and Fowler will take on the team of Kennedy and Krum in straight sets. Kennedy and Fox also defeated Brigham and Merrill in straight sets. Strong and S. Hancock now play Kennedy and Fox in the semi-finals and in the lower half Herzog and Fowler will take on the winners of the match between Rose and Olivet and Forsyth and Swan.

Ross Talks About The Rabbit Punch

By BOB CAVAGNARO
(Associated Press Sports Writer)

Ferdale, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—The first bombshell in the forthcoming Barney Ross-Jimmy McLarnin welterweight title fight was hurled today by Champion Barney himself.

There was a suspicious odor of publicity about it all but Barney declared he was serious.

The 25-year-old holder of the lightweight and welterweight championships charged that McLarnin slung him several times during their clash last May with rabbit punches and announced he intended to take up the matter with the boxing commission when the fighters meet next Thursday afternoon for weighing-in ceremonies.

"He got me in close several times and brought his right hand down hard on the base of my skull," Ross said while he relaxed in his cottage, taking the day off.

"He didn't hit me solidly or else he would have paralyzed me. The rabbit punch is illegal and there's no reason why he should be permitted to get away with it."

Barney's squawk, he hastened to explain, was not because he has any fear of the Vancouver bomber. On the contrary, he said he not only expects to repeat his triumph of last May when he spotted Jimmy five rounds and copped the welterweight title, but anticipates knocking him out this time.

Barney's handlers have changed his training routine, cutting his morning road work to three miles and reducing his boxing stint from six to three rounds a day. He will follow this program tomorrow, Sunday and Monday and then embark for New York where he will remain in strict solitude, save for a light workout on Tuesday, until the night of the fight. He weighed 138 1/2 after yesterday's grind and expects to enter the ring against McLarnin weighing no less than 138.

Thumbnail History Of America's Cup

No. 5. The Third Challenge
New York, Aug. 31 (AP)—The veteran schooner America came out from the curtain of the past to play an unofficial part in the New York Yacht Club's successful defense of the America's Cup against the challenge of the Royal Canadian Yacht Club's Countess of Dufferin in 1876.

Although 25 years had elapsed since the America had lifted the international trophy from England in 1851, the old boat built by George Steers was still fast enough to out-sail the Canadian challenger.

In this contest three races were arranged and the challenger had to meet only one defender—the centre-board schooner Madeline, owned by J. S. Dickerson.

The first race was sailed over the N. Y. Y. C. course and was won by Madeline by 10 minutes, 59 seconds corrected time. The second race was 20 miles to windward from Sandy Hook and return.

The old America participated in this race as a pacer. While the actual rivalry for the cup rested between the Countess and Madeline, old America beat the Canadian schooner by 15 minutes and nine seconds and finished a little more than eight minutes behind Madeline, the official winner.

Shields, Lott in Semi-Finals Eastern Tennis

Rye, N. Y., Aug. 31 (AP)—Davis Cup teammates only a few weeks ago, Frank Shields and George Lott found themselves on opposite ends of the net in the semi-final round of the eastern grass court tennis championships today.

The other semi-final brought together two of the game's younger generation, Frankie Parker of Springfield, N. J., and Gene Mako of Los Angeles, national intercollegiate and junior champion.

The women's singles semi-finals seat Betty Nuthall against Freda James in an all-English match, and Baronesse Mand Levi of New York and Minden, Nev., against the third British survivor, Katherine Stanmer.

All players are requested to be there. Final arrangements for practice will be made. The meeting is called for 8:30 at the club rooms at Nick Kaslich's Billiard Academy.

Milkmen Win Over Gardeners by 9-0 Forfeit in Uptown League

There was a hot time at the old ball field last evening when Uptown Milkmen played a very acute game of baseball against the Gardeners.

The Milkmen won the game by a 9-0 forfeit decision over the Crystal Gardeners after one of the hottest arguments in years. It took police protection to restore order but the Milkmen remained the dominant force in the dispute until the end.

It all happened when he called out Hank Cragan on one of those eye-bash plays at home plate. Had Cragan been called safe the score would have been tied 5-5 and it might have been a different ball game.

But Schwab called him out and then the storm broke loose. When the Gardeners refused to take the field for the last of the fifth, Schwab gave them one minute in which to decide their course and when nothing was forthcoming from the Crystal Garden bench, automatically awarded the game to the Milkmen.

At the time the Milkmen held a 5-4 edge.

The situation arose in the fifth inning after the Milkmen had rapped Zik Geisler's offerings for three runs and had the bases loaded with one out. Hank Cragan was on third base when Slicker rammed a fly to Pres Knight in centerfield. Knight made a neat peg from the outfield. Geisler cut it off in the middle of the diamond and shot the ball to Herbie Clarke, who tagged Cragan as the first baseman came sliding into home plate.

The umpire waved him out but it was a long time before peace was restored. Officer Wes Cramer was a very influential factor in breaking up the argument.

Schwab was followed by the crowds wherever he went after the game but during the heated discussion he stood his ground, apparently willing to take on the whole Crystal Garden team of the occasion.

Jack Dodge twirled a neat game for the Gardeners and gave up only four hits but they were crammed in to the fruitful third when the Milkmen scored four runs. Six errors didn't help his cause any.

Elsworth's two base muff of Ad Stumph's fly started the fireworks in the third. Slicker followed with another error on Joyce's grounder. Stumph, scoring. Singles by Thomas and Dawkins and a scratch double by Pres Knight netted three more markers.

Dodge and Merritt got walks to set the stage for the stormy fifth. Both runners moved up. A boot by Jack Dawkins let two runners score and a single by Cragan scored the third run. Successive raps by Davitt and Davis loaded the bases and then followed the much disputed play.

The box score:

Schryver All Stars And Zulus to Play

Saturday afternoon the Schryver All Stars will cross bats with the Zulu Cannibals in the third and deciding game of their three game series.

Each team has a win to its credit. The game will be played at the Athletic Field and will start at 3:30 sharp.

The All Stars battery has not been announced as yet, but Martin of Thomas will probably get the call with Joe Hoffman on the receiving end.

A large crowd of fans is expected at the field to witness the struggle. The two nines are evenly matched and a fast game is looked for.

Diers All Stars Win Over Irish Block Nine

Last evening Block Park was the scene of another good ball game. The Diers All Stars took the measure of the Irish Block nine of Wilbur, to the tune of 4-2. Ky Embree was on the mound for the All Stars and hurled an excellent game. It was his second straight win for the Diers, and he had the Blockers well under control throughout the game.

Ed Scherer tossed them over the Irish nine and also twirled a good game, but loose fielding by his mates did not help him any.

Fruiteers and the Clintonians Tonight

Tonight at the Athletic Field the Clintonians will take on the Fruiteers in an Uptown Industrial League Game. The batteries have not been announced.
